

COVID-19 ASSISTANCE FOR ALBERTA RESIDENTS

RECOVERY BENEFIT PROGRAMS

The following recovery benefits are available for residents of Canada who were at least 15 years old, present in Canada, have a valid SIN, and had earned at least $5,000 in 2019, 2020 or in the previous 12 months before the date of application, from employment income, self-employment income, or maternity/parental EI benefits. You must not have quit your job or reduced your hours voluntarily on or after September 27, 2020.

The recovery benefits are administered by the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA). You can apply for these benefits online through CRA My Account or by phone 60 days after the 2-week period has ended.

Individuals are eligible for only one of the following recovery benefits with respect to the same period and would not qualify if they received short-term disability, workers compensation, or employment insurance benefits.

CANADA RECOVERY BENEFIT (CRB)

This benefit ended October 23, 2021 and applications closed on December 23, 2021. The CRB provided $500 ($450 after taxes withheld) per week for up to 42 weeks if you applied before July 18, 2021 or $300 ($270 after taxes) per week if you applied after July 18, 2021 or already received 42 weeks of benefits. The benefit was available for up to a total of 54 weeks for workers who have stopped working or had their employment or self-employment income reduced by at least 50% due to COVID-19, and are available and looking for work and are not entitled to Employment Insurance (EI) benefits.

An individual may earn employment or self-employment income while receiving CRB. Repayment of $0.50 of the CRB for every dollar of net income (excluding CRB) that exceeds $38,000 will be required upon filing of the individual's income tax return.

CANADA RECOVERY SICKNESS BENEFIT (CRSB)

This benefit was extended to May 7, 2022. The CRSB provides $500 ($450 after taxes withheld) per week for up to a maximum of six weeks, for workers who are unable to work for at least 50% of their scheduled work week because of self-isolation for one of the following reasons and did not receive paid leave from their employer in respect of the same week:

- Are sick with COVID-19 or may have COVID-19
- Were advised to self-isolate due to COVID-19
- Have an underlying health condition that puts the worker at greater risk of getting COVID-19

CANADA RECOVERY CAREGIVING BENEFIT (CRCB)

This benefit was extended to May 7, 2022. The CRCB provides $500 ($450 after taxes withheld) per week for up to 44 weeks per household, for workers unable to work for at least 50% of their normally scheduled work week and did not receive paid leave from their employer in respect of the same week because they must care for a child who is under age 12 or a family member who needs supervised care because they are at home for one of the following reasons:

- Their school, daycare, day program, care facility is closed or is unavailable to them due to COVID-19
- Their regular care services are unavailable due to COVID-19
- The person under care is either sick with COVID-19 or has symptoms, at risk of serious health complications if they get COVID-19 (as advised by a medical professional), or are self-isolating due to COVID-19

CANADA WORKER LOCKDOWN BENEFIT (CWLb)

This benefit provides $300 ($270 after taxes) per week to eligible workers who have experienced a 50% reduction in income due to a COVID-19 temporary local lockdown anytime between October 24, 2021 to May 7, 2022. The benefit is available for the entire duration of a government-imposed public health lockdown for workers who are not entitled to EI or other recovery benefits. The government expanded the definition of lockdown order to include organizations that are subject to 50% capacity-limiting restrictions from December 19, 2021 until March 12, 2022. Click here for more info.

Individuals whose loss of income or employment is due to their refusal to adhere to a vaccine mandate would not be able to access the benefit.

HOME OFFICE DEDUCTION

Eligible employees who worked more than 50% of the time from home for a period of at least 4 consecutive weeks due to COVID-19 can use a new temporary flat rate method that allows you to deduct up to a maximum $500 per individual. This rate applies to the 2021 and 2022 tax years. Under this simplified method you do not have to calculate the size of your work space, keep supporting documents or get Form T2200 signed by your employer.

If you are using the detailed method to claim your deduction you can now use a simplified Form 2200S and T777S that can be signed electronically, and make use of a newly created calculator to determine your eligible expenses. TEMPORARY CHANGES TO EI

Canadians with 420 hours of insurable work or more may qualify for a benefit amount of at least $300 per week before taxes for claims that are made between Sept 27, 2020 and Sept 25, 2021. For claims between Sept 26, 2021 and Sept 24, 2022 the required insurable hours is between 420 and 700 hours based on the unemployment rate in your area during the qualifying period. For most people the EI basic rate is 55% of their average insurable weekly earnings, up to a maximum amount (2021—$595 per week). EI sickness benefits will no longer require a medical certificate.

Individuals whose loss of income or employment is due to failure to adhere to vaccine policies would not be able eligible for EI regular benefits.

REPAYMENT OF BENEFITS

Repayment of benefits are required if you were no longer eligible or received a payment in error. If repaid before Dec. 31, 2020 the amount should have been subtracted from your T4A slip. However, if repaid after Dec 31, 2020 your repayment will be on your 2021 T4A slip. If you were taxed on the full amount in 2020 you can claim a deduction on your 2021 tax return.

Individuals who make intentionally fraudulent claims may also face additional consequences, such as penalties or possible jail time.

INTEREST RELIEF ON TAX PAYMENTS

Interest relief to Canadians who received COVID-related income support benefits. Once individuals have filed their 2020 income tax return, they will not be required to pay interest on any outstanding income tax debt for the 2020 tax year until April 30, 2022. CRA will automatically apply the interest relief measure for individuals that meet the following criteria:

- Total taxable income of $75,000 or less in 2020, and
- Received COVID-related income support in 2020 from one or more of the following: CERB, CESB, CRB, CRCB, CRSB, EI benefits, or similar provincial programs such as the Alberta Emergency Isolation support

The CRA did not extend the 2020 tax filing deadline and all Canadians should have filed their returns by their respective deadlines.
